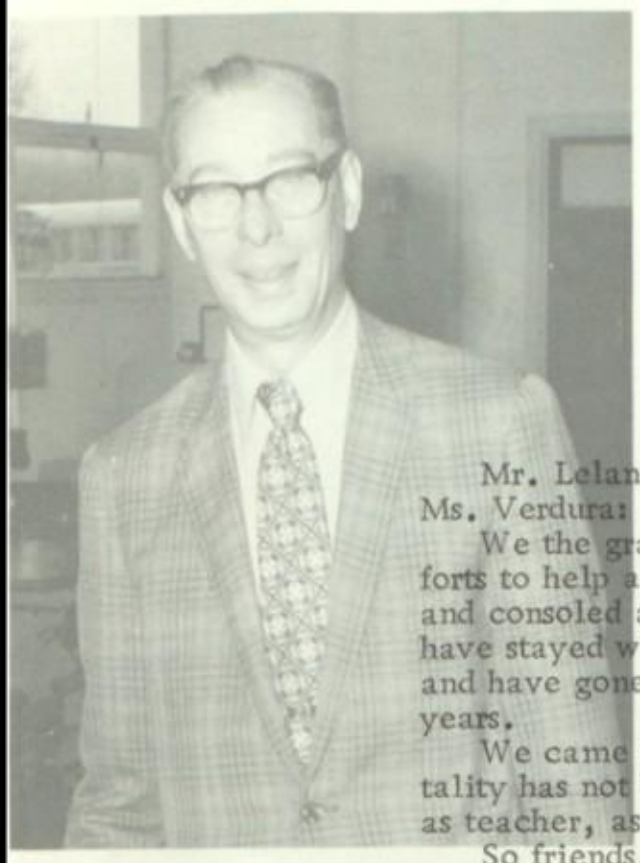
DEDICATION

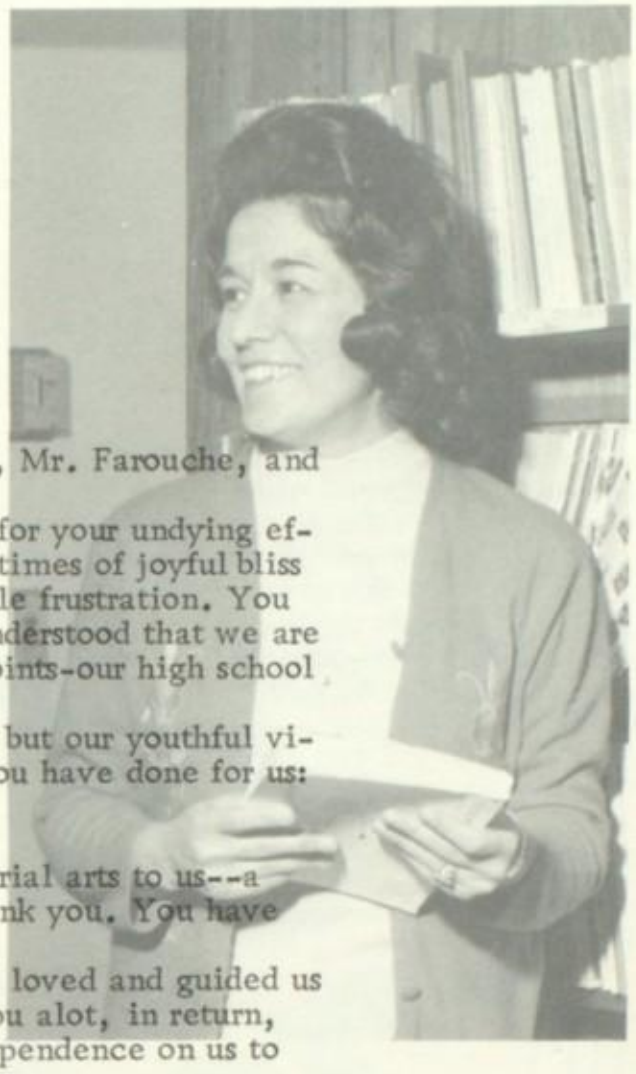
As freshmen, the class of "73" came doubtful and searching. Some of us found a homeroom teacher, others found an administrator, and all of us found a buddy. We soon discovered that this buddy was one of the few people in this school system who was willing to compromise. He has always given us a chance to speak before he spoke and an even break when he said, "I didn't see that." Throughout many crises, while experiencing pressure from faculty, administration, and students, he has managed to find the best possible solution to a situation recognizing the interests of everyone.

We admire him for treating us as equals and respecting us as individuals giving us his trust- something which is not usually given to students. His concern for us has often become a target of criticism. His door, like his mind, is always open; it's nice to know we always have a place to go when we need help.

You, John Goodale, have shown us that there are still people in whom we can have faith. There is so much more that we cannot express to you in words. So, as we leave behind our years at FSCS we can only say "Thank you for caring" and for bringing the class of "73" together as we dedicate our book to you.

IN APPRECIATION





Mr. Leland, Ms. Falzarano, Mr. Dydyk, Mr. Mannion, Mr. Farouche, and Ms. Verdura:

We the graduating class of '73 would like to thank you for your undying efforts to help and guide us. You have all shared with us our times of joyful bliss and consoled and comforted us in times of almost unbearable frustration. You have stayed with us and have not lost faith; for you have understood that we are and have gone through one of life's most critical turning points-our high school years.

We came as youths; some of us will leave as the same; but our youthful vitality has not blinded us. We cannot fail to recognize all you have done for us: as teacher, as counselor and above all, as friend.

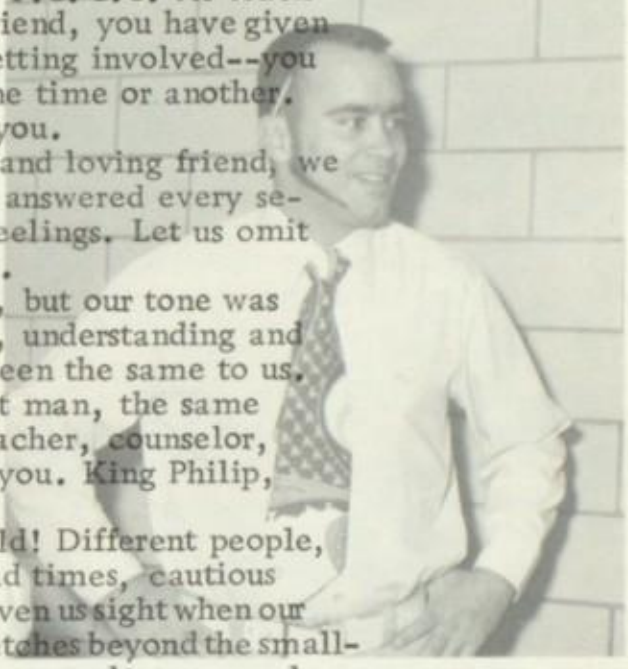
So friends, thank you.

Mr. Leland, you have been a super at projecting industrial arts to us--a super at projecting the art of understanding to us guys. Thank you. You have opened our eyes.

Ms. Falzarano. What can we say to the woman who has loved and guided us since our first year of junior high? We have depended on you alot, in return, you have given us something we never anticipated; your dependence on us to lead good lives when we leave you. Thank you for being you.

Mr. Dydyk--What vibration and life you have brought to F.S.C.S. As teacher, you guide us in the mechanics of our instruments--as friend, you have given us a superb outlet for frustration and happiness. MUSIC--getting involved--you know us. The bandroom has been a home for all of us at one time or another. Home at school is ironic, but super. You are super, thank you.

Mr. Mannion, our devoted physics teacher, #1 coach, and loving friend, we love you. Words cannot say enough, "Sport," for you have answered every seniors' needs. Silence is said to harbor a million beautiful feelings. Let us omit the words and leave a silent space for you . . . Thank-you.



Mr. Farouche, in days of old we called you "Teacher", but our tone was not the same for you as it was for others. You were patient, understanding and kind, if we could have called you "King", it would have been the same to us. Now you no longer teach, but you are still the same patient man, the same understanding person, you still bare the same kindness. Teacher, counselor, any field that you seek to work in, you are great--you are you. King Philip, we thank you.

Ms. Verdura, look at us, we are going out into the world! Different people, different places, more challenging things. Happy times, sad times, cautious times, blind times--Life. You have awakened us, you have given us sight when our eyes were almost blinded. There is a world out there--it stretches beyond the smallness of Frankfort, thanks to you, this we can see. You have been good to us--you love us and the feeling is so mutual. "Was blind, but now I see." Thank you.

So to all of you--we thank you. We have chosen this page to say that and all that we have felt. The world is ours now; new horizons to conquer. Let us only hope that in our conquest for the future, we can seek and strive and be as great as you. So from all of us thank you.

Good Luck
M. C. Farouche

Prologue

Autumn to winter,
winter into spring,
Spring into summer,
summer into fall-
So rolls the changing year,
and so we change;
Motion so swift,
we know not that we move.
--Dianah M. Craik
--The Immutable

The year passes--and another class of seniors graduates and is launched on the brink of a new life. For some this means college, others marriage, employment, and the military service. The class of '73 can remember many events which have occurred during our year, some being historical including the end to a long war in Asia and the return of our Prisoners of War. We have all experienced something which we will never have again. And yet the juniors move up to become seniors while the sophomores eagerly await to take their places, leaving little time for nostalgia; it is like the disturbance of a stream by a pebble. The seniors are the pebble creating the disturbance, interrupting the flow of the stream. Then there is a calm, the seniors graduate, and another class of seniors emerges. The stream continues flowing steadily not to be disturbed until another pebble is tossed in.

This year we were made aware of a constant detriment to our world, our country, even our class, that being disunity. There is a great need to get together and it is for this reason we chose as our theme, "Come Together '73". We attempted to capture the sensations of being young and alive, for a moment, and recorded them in print. Yet our pictures and writings are inanimate--you must add the life, the feeling, and stirring of your memory. There have been some bad times but there have been some of the most wonderful ones we'll ever have.

The class of '73 takes on its own character because of the many unique personalities represented. Some of us are bright, some not so sharp, some are exuberant, some merely apathetic-some athletic, some poetic but, for a time, we were all the '73 Maroon Knights which is, after all, the link which lead you and me to "come together."

Our book is not to be read lightly. Some will undoubtedly try to go through it skimming along but to really grasp the intended meaning one should pause and take a deeper look at a slower pace. The essence of the meaning is embedded in the words. To those who would be quick to judge, we did not attempt to make any drastic changes in tradition nor offend anyone, but merely tried to depict our year as we saw it --leaving out the candy-coating.

And now to the seniors, I will leave you with a quote. "We are but one step away from greatness and before the rest of the world knows it, we are going to take that step . . . "

--Hotchins

Now is that time to act for there's a new day dawning; make of it what you will.

HOMECOMING

Five young gallant squires, each with a princess stands;
Monica with Donnie and Joyce, in Ben's brave hands.

Rick is guarding his special princess as Vin and Lu patiently wait; Frank and Val walk lastly-- to us, each pair is great.

Bomb the Bombers
the cheering crowds scream as five young stately princesses watch their princes make Ilion, cream.

Windy and rainy,
the Bombers are bombed Colorguard's performing as the band plays on.

Lucy is crowned Queen,
and King; Joe is to be.
Half time is over our knights fight on to victory.

King Joe and Queen Lucy and chosen court, as one, hold the eyes of many.
The great night has begun.

There comes a time for dancing,
there comes a time for play, good vibrations whelm us over on the floor, on the field this day.

Windy and rainy,
the Bombers are bombed
and the night closes its eyes while the band plays on.

The no. 1 Seniors

Once upon a time . . .

at Frankfort High there was a snow circus . . .

Dawn brought a colorful snowbound clown, a very ferocious lion, a circus cannon and balls, and a most unique looking seal. Molded from the hands of our winter sportsmen, came an elephant, who was sitting and watching all the snow frolic and activities.

Dusk brought clowns and crowds out of the cold and into a new world of dancing and prancing, and crowning a snow king and queen. The court was accompanied by attendants--an old idea that made the night complete and brought all as one.

And after the choosing and cruising, jestering and festering--night's lights dimmed and the joyful hearts of clowns and crowds became silent. Yet in the silence, hearts remained full of magical memories that shall live on long after our little snow circus melts away.

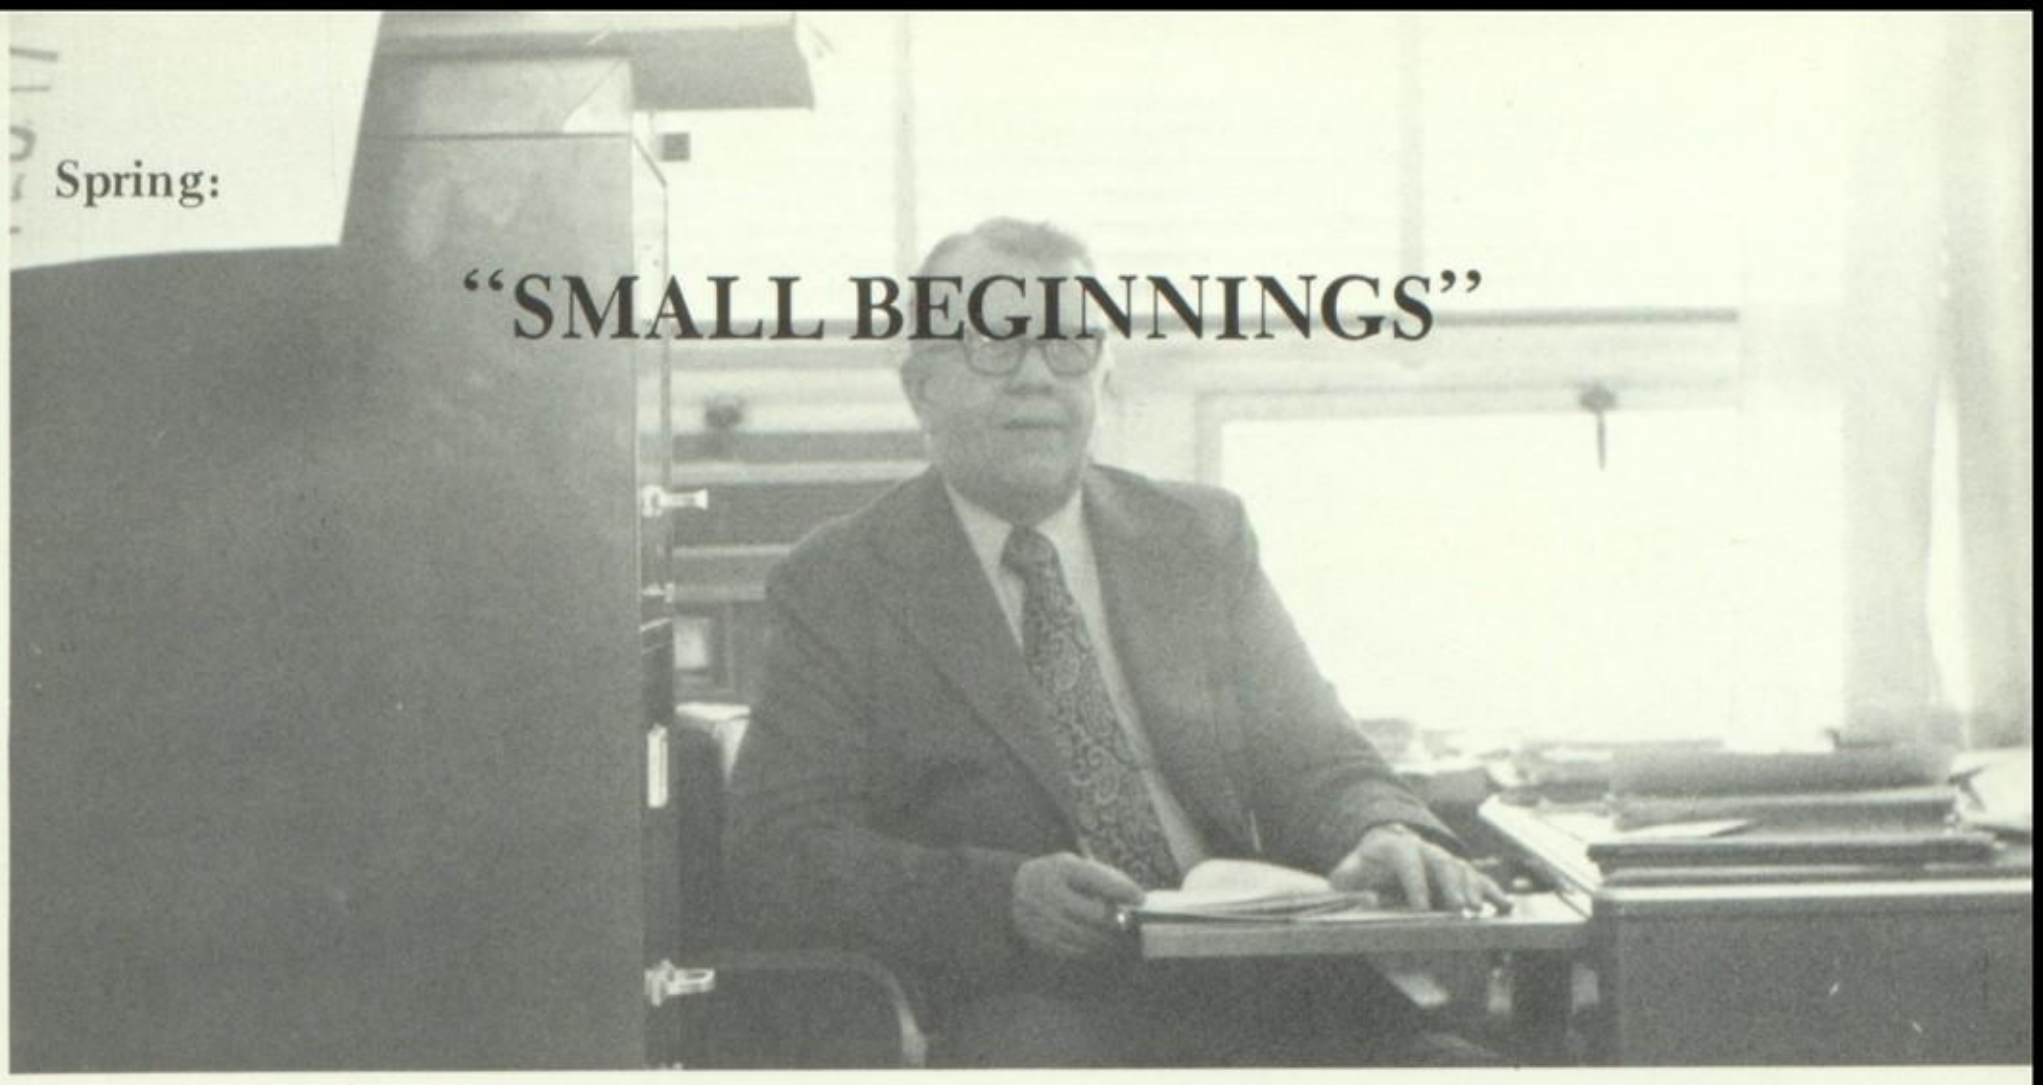
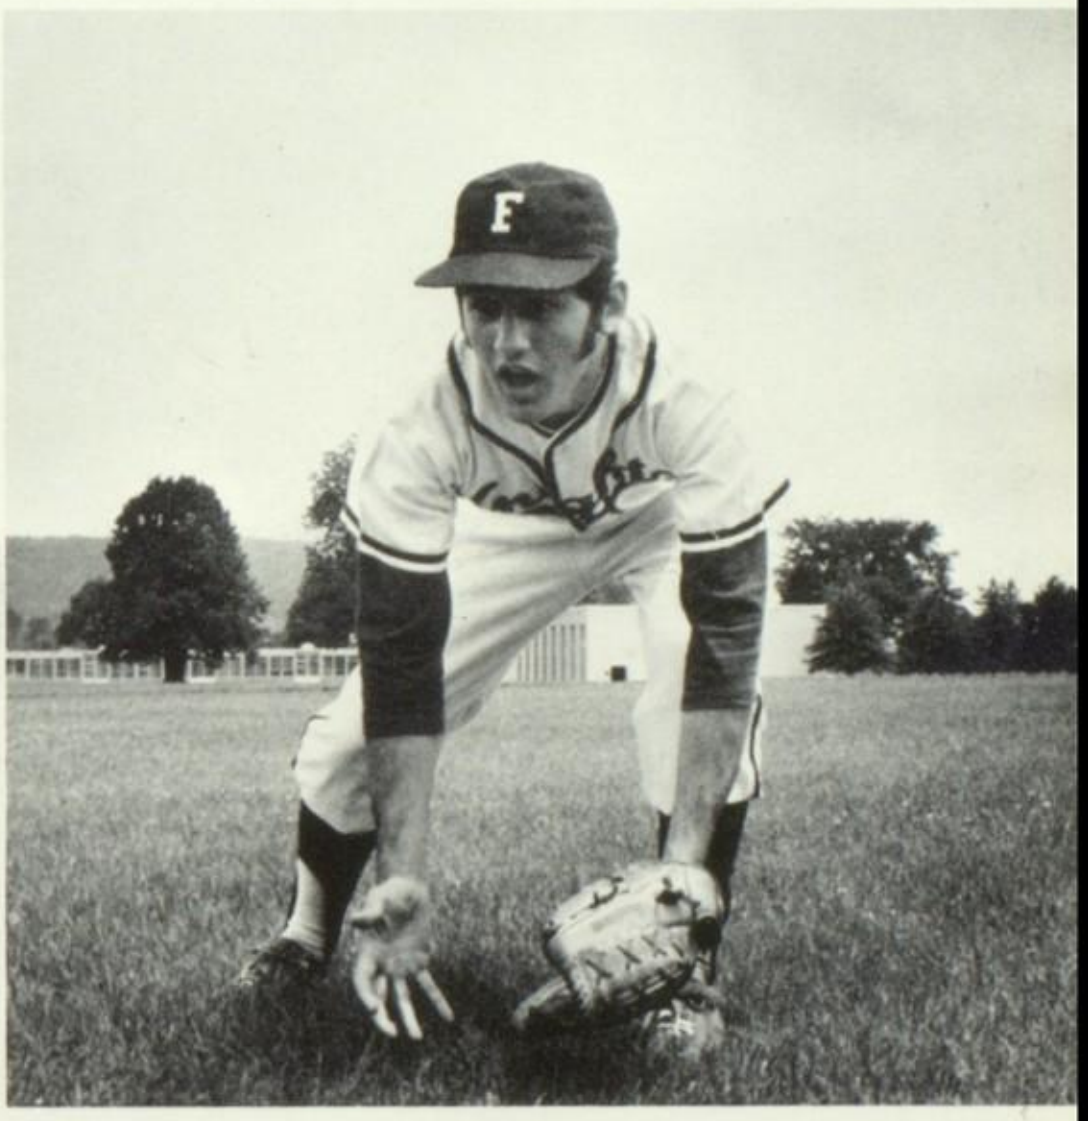
"SMALL BEGINNINGS"





IN MEMORIAM

This past March our town was deeply saddened by the untimely death of our school nurse and friend; Ms. Bella M. Oriole. To all of us who knew her, she was always a source of joy and hope. She was someone everyone depended on; as a nurse, a friend, a teacher, and a wife and mother. We will always cherish her memory.

One spring day
So desolate and so cold
God needed beauty
To help spring's arms unfold.

And he looked upon the world;
He knew in his heart this day he'd find the blooming flower, a light to brighten the way.

He searched to the end of eternity-Somewhere, it had to be...
And then he found true tranquility,
In the form of a woman, you see.

A wife, a mother, a daughter;
Now from her loved ones--set apart,
And she was taken from her own home to live near God's pure heart.

And spring's next day was beautiful, God transformed her into the sun and the wind and the breeze.
And you can hear her voice in sweet whispers, as she sends her love through the trees.

God gives strength to those who lose,
And God gives strength to thee.
Sweet tears you cry for a love that's gone,
But sweet Bella will always be.

Charlotte Stevens

IN MEMORIAM

Our student body was deeply touched by the deaths of two of our former elementary teachers this past year, Ms. Elinor Shields and Ms. Horsley. Words cannot express the emotions that we so honestly feel. They were our friends, just a smile and kind word from them meant so much.

These two women helped us just when we needed it the most; they helped to build the foundation upon which we are formed as individuals. As teachers they instilled a hope in us for future years that we may become responsible adults.

We will always remember: their deep concern for us as students, their quest for perfection in themselves, words of praise for a kind or generous act, and that deep abiding faith in God's goodness and wisdom.

The Elinor G. Shields Memorial Award is given to a graduating senior majoring in elementary education. This is in honor of Ms. Shields who spent fifteen years helping our Elementary Students at the Kindergarten Level. It is hoped that the love, compassion, and understanding Ms. Shields had for all students will also be with the recipient of this award.

When we were young . . .

When I Was Little
by Naomi Shihab

When I was a little kid about ten years ago
I used to ask why leaves fell,
Why night came, why the moon was a fingernail sometimes,
And why the seatide rolled backwards and forwards.
They told me that leaves fell off the trees so
The naked branches would have room for fresh baby leaves in the springtime.
They said that nighttime came because daytime would soon grow Boring
If it were all that were,
And that the moon could not be fat and round all the time because
The moon did not stay in one place
And also, because I looked at it from different angles.
They told me that the tide went out
So the tide could come in.
Because if the tide just came in and never went out
Imagine how deep the water would be at my shore
And how shallow at somebody else's.
When I was a little kid about two years ago
I used to ask why tears fell,
Why emptiness came, why the world was a thornbush sometimes,
And why my feelings for people and their feelings for me went in and out.
And the difference now is that they do not have to tell me anything Because I have not forgotten.

Undoubtedly
it's perversion that makes me write your name on every wall of every public place or private.
In library books, on bus windows carved in a chocolate cake and in salt spilt on the tabletop.
Sadly, I can't stop, even though I Know you are above reading messages furtively left you on an unsigned wall.

"Your were born together, and together you shall be forevermore.
You shall be together when the white wings of death scatter your days.
Ay, you shall be together
even in the silent memory of God.
But let there be spaces in your togetherness,
And let the winds of the heavens dance between you.
Love one and other, but make not a bond of love:
Let it rather be a moving between the shores of your souls.
Fill each other's cup but drink not from one cup.
Give one another of your bread but eat not from the same loaf.
Sing and dance together and be joyous, but let each one of you be alone,
Even as the strings of a lute are alone,
though they quiver with the same music.
Give your hearts, but not into each other's keeping.
For only the hand of life can contain your hearts.
And stand together yet not too near together:
For the pillars of the temple stand apart.
And the oak tree and the cypress grow not in each other's shadow."

To every thing there is a season,
and a time to every purpose
under the heaven:
A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted;
A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up;
A time to weep, and a time to laugh, a time to mourn, and a time to dance;
A time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;
A time to get, and a time to lose;
a time to keep, and a time to cast away;
A time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak;
A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace.
To every thing there is a season,
and a time to every purpose
under the heaven.

Ecclesiastes

Yes, to every thing there is a season, and as we watch the seasons turn, we watch ourselves. We've given birth to ourselves as we let old ideals die, and have planted and reeped with our ideas and the silence we have allowed when words could no longer suffice.
We have killed each time we have broken human character and healed as we have given confidence to that character or some other.
We have laughed as if taken over by some moment of drunkedness, and then weeped in vain for the same thing.
We have mourned for self loss, for loss of things or people that were precious to us, and then in the same-danced when we regained these things, or the knowledge to know life goes on and so must we, even if we can't gain them back.
We have gathered ideas into rebellion and then as a crumbling stone-let ideas part. We realize we can get no-where, and though there should have been, there was really not too much disillusionment.
We have embraced and said, "I love YOU", and also refrained on thought of rejection . . . but love, as it stands, should have none.
We have acquired and lost, we have striven for a goal and sometimes not attained, but the thing is--we did strive and loss was not in completion.
We have torn to pieces, and then tried to restore that very thing we destroyed . . . was it ourselves?
We have tried to keep peaceful silence with ourselves, but there is always a haunting voice--it could be the voice of silence itself.
We have loved, and in our loving, found peace. We have hated, and in our hatred promoted war--sometimes love served as war's pacifier-but no always.
We have, as the seasons, turned, and in turning--enlightened ourselves as humans. To wonder and amaze at each of our changing moods would be as relentless and unanswerable as to wonder why earth's seasons change.
